Photo Workshop: New York - A cinematic Journey

Description

„Now you're in New York
These streets will make you feel brand new
Big lights will inspire you“

Who doesn't know these lines about New York that among others were among others sung by Alicia Keys. New York City is a dream destination for many travelers and especially photo enthusiasts. Besides the iconic landmarks as the Brooklyn Bridge, the Empire State Building or the billboards at Times Square, New York City has a lot more to offer. Especially for street photography the opportunities are almost endless! There is barely a corner that doesn't look like straight out of a movie. But: How to find these spots? How to capture this city in a different way? Where to go at night? How to find new techniques and approaches to take images not everyone takes?

On this photo journey we will visit places and take images that not everyone does. We will tell visual stories, transporting the spirit of this unique city. We will visit locations no travel guide would tell you about and we will explore the legendary New York subway. We will capture the iconic landmarks in a way not everyone does. We will experiment with reflections, layers and motion blur. In the end we will talk and learn a lot about photography and have a lot of fun in the city of all cities!

Gear

New York is a diverse city as are the scenes. I recommend a standard zoom for daytime (e.g. 24-70). And one or two primes for low light shooting (e.g. 24/28/35 and 85 with at least f2.0). Since we don't want to limit ourselves by bad weather, your gear should be weather resistant. Additionally, enough sd-cards and back up space!

Besides that, weather resistant clothes. The weather in New York City is not predictable and especially the wind can be very chilly. Since we will walk a lot, comfortable shoes are a must too!
